

Journal of Theoretical and Philosophical Criminology

---

Volume 4 | Issue 2

Article 1

---

7-1-2012

Editor's Statement

David Polizzi
Indiana State University

Follow this and additional works at: <https://scholars.indianastate.edu/jtpcrim>

Part of the Criminology and Criminal Justice Commons, and the Social Control, Law, Crime, and Deviance Commons

---

Recommended Citation

Polizzi, David (2012) "Editor's Statement," Journal of Theoretical and Philosophical Criminology: Vol. 4: Iss. 2, Article 1.

Available at: <https://scholars.indianastate.edu/jtpcrim/vol4/iss2/1>

This Editorial is brought to you for free and open access by the Publications at Sycamore Scholars. It has been accepted for inclusion in Journal of Theoretical and Philosophical Criminology by an authorized editor of Sycamore Scholars. For more information, please contact dana.swinford@indstate.edu.

Letter from the Editor

David Polizzi, Indiana State University

I would like to give everyone a belated welcome to the most current issue of the Journal of Theoretical and Philosophical Criminology. The current edition of the journal features Robert Agnew's important text, Toward a Unified Criminology: Integrating Assumptions about Crime, People, and Society with invited commentary from Stuart Henry, Matthew Robinson, James Unnever and Avi Brisman. Agnew provides a brief synopsis of his text for those who have not read or who are not familiar with the text and the commentators have crafted their reflections or critique based on the book length text. The featured author section has been well received by the readers of jtpcrim and will continue as a regular feature in the journal.

JTPCRIM is still accepting graduate student submissions, which may appear in either the January or July/August edition of the journal. We certainly encourage students who are currently engaged with material that reflects the basic theoretical and qualitative orientation of this journal to submit their scholarship for possible publication.

Sincerely,

David Polizzi, Editor

Indiana State University